

Font Style

myTest Account

July 2023

1 Introduction

If we want to underline a word or a sentence, we use the command `\underline`. On the other hand we might want to use bold fonts, and we do that by invoking the command `\textbf`. Finally, the other very common way to put emphasis on a text is the use of italics, and for that we use the command `\textit`. `\emph` is also italics (depending on the documentclass), but not always.

`\underline` This command is equivalent to the command `\underline`. Ulem changes the functionality of `\emph` to `\underline`. `\underline` This other command might add something new to our text. A wave underline would look like this: `\wavyunderline` this is an example. ~~This content is to be removed. //This is censored.~~ In order to have a dashed underline, we use the command `\dashuline`. For the dotted underline, we use the command `\dotuline`.

This is the tiny size

This is the script size

This is the footnote size

This is the small size

This is normal size

This is the large size

This is the Large size

This is the LARGE size

This is the huge size

This is the Huge size

If no brackets, it sets the size for all subsequent text until overwritten.

Example.

This is better convention See?